She Prepared the Supper, but Ate None of it.

es Not Allowed to Hear Each

CAPE MAY, N. J., Sept. 29.—The trial of Viola Thompson, for poisoning her grandparents was resumed this morning in the Criminal Court. The story of the crime is an interesting one.

On Saturday evening, April 15. Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson, an aged couple, residing at Green Creek, near Cape May, ate supper of cakes and coffee. Before they had finished the meal, they were taken violently ill. Their daughter came in soon after the meal was over and ate that portion of the supper which had been saved for her. Within a short time she, also, was taken ill, in the same manner as her parents. The symptoms in each case pointed strongly to arsenic poisoning.

As investigation was made. Suspicion was directed to Viola Thompson, the grandchild of the old couple and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson's daughter. Viola's reputation had suffered in the past from indiscretions she had committed. Viola's grandparents and aum objected to the class of company she had been keeping.

It was remarked that Viola ate no supper that Saturday night.

The County Physician made an examination of the coffee which the Thompson family had for supper and discovered that it had been dosed with arsenic. Viola had prepared the supper. She was suspected of having put the arsenic in the coffee and was arrested.

As a motive for her crime, it was shown that she had had trouble with her grandparents and aunt shortly before the poisoning because they refused to allow her to receive the attentions of meighbor, and received his letters at the same place. Viola is an attractive girl about fifteen years of age.

The testimony thus far has brought for the facts as set forth here. Viola's first forth the facts as set forth here. Viola's first forth the facts as set forth here. Viola met him clandestinely at the house of a neighbor, and received his letters at the same place. Viola is an attractive girl about fifteen years of age.

The testimony thus far has brought forth the facts as set forth here. Violas grandparents and aunt ultimately recovered from the poisoning and were able to appear as witnesses against her. The court-house was crowded. Judge Reed presided. Prosecutor Jonas' S. Miller is conducting the case for the people. The prisoner a pretty brunette, who wears a neat-fitting Eton suittrimmed with old rose velvet, and who also wears a pretty and becoming velvet hat, attracts much attention. The witnesses thus far examined are Dr. W. A. Lake, who attended the two Thompson, the uncle of the accused, and the husband of the aunt who was poisoned, and Mrs. Isabella Conover.

Dr. Lake told of his finding arsenic in the coffee; Charles Thompson corroborated the physician's testimony, and Mrs. Isabella Conover.

Dr. Lake told of his finding arsenic in the coffee; Charles Thompson corroborated the physician's testimony, and Mrs. Conover testified that prior to the poisoning Viola had told her that she would be glad to go home and find her grandfather dead.

According to Judge Reed's order, all witnesses are excluded from the courtroom excepting the one on the witness stand. This is done to avoid collusion. James Thompson and his wife. Viola's grandparents, and Eva Thompson's wife and Viola's aunt, will testify to-day.
